
A Special "Thank You"

In producing the TESL Reporter, one of the most important behind-the-scenes jobs is the evaluation of manuscripts which have been submitted to the editor to be considered for publication. Although for many years this process was handled "in house," manuscripts submitted to the TESL Reporter are now evaluated not only by the TESL Reporter's editorial staff but also by other TESL professionals with expertise appropriate to the topic of the manuscript. In addition to evaluating submissions, these "referees" frequently offer useful suggestions on how manuscripts can be improved. For their service, these individuals receive no reward other than professional recognition and sincere thanks from the editor, the staff, and the readers of the TESL Reporter. Thus, we extend a special "thank you" to the following people who have evaluated manuscripts for the TESL Reporter this past year:

Curtis W. Hayes
The University of Texas at San Antonio

Harold S. Madsen
Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah

Alice C. Pack
Oceanside, California

Ted Plaister
The University of Hawaii at Manoa

Earl W. Stevick
Foreign Service Institute,
Department of State, Washington, D.C.
